I have just bought a LCD Sony TV and a DH200A plus set top box from Bing Lee. So I did a system reset to start again as I couldnt get rid of it. PIN Code requests and stuff came up I thought I cancelled but must have said OK as it then only gave me 3 channel 9 stations, and I do not know what the PIN to reset it is I have just bought a LCD Sony TV and a DH200A plus set top box from Bing Lee. First issue was the manual in the box was for the DH200A and has a different remote with different button names So I did a system reset to start again as I couldnt get rid of it. PIN Code requests and stuff came up I thought I cancelled but must have said OK as it then only gave me 3 channel 9 stations, and I do not know what the PIN to reset it is In trying to work out how to use it I started to add blank channels. So I did a system reset to start again as I couldnt get rid of it. PIN Code requests and stuff came up I thought I cancelled but must have said OK as it then only gave me 3 channel 9 stations, and I do not know what the PIN to reset it is I havent seen the model you have but most are fairly intuitive, there should be some type of auto scan function which will pick up everything about 40 channels all up, or there abouts you can then usually delete or hide the ones you dont want. It is better than the 2000A, but in my experience has a tuner problem at the top end around channel 68 820 Mhz or thereabouts. I finished up upgrading to the Panasonic HDT 104A and have had no troubles since. Im afraid DGTEC have lost me.
